Even though many Russian girls are very educated, it doesn't mean that all of them speak English properly. And those ladies who are not fluent in English may not also have a great deal of typing experience. This could bring about misunderstandings and your communication could be a bit tricky in the beginning. You need to remember that the Slavic alphabet is very different from the English one and she is undoubtedly trying her best to make you comprehend her. Be patient and read everything carefully. Do not ask questions which are complex and try to not use cultural references or slang.

It's also very important to understand that the culture of Russia is very different from the Western culture in a lot of ways. Some of them are obvious while other are subtle and beyond understanding as a foreigner. A very obvious issue is how feminine Russian women are. They are very proud of their good looks and quite a few of them may disagree with all the feminist ideas that are spreading in the western nations. They are inclined to prefer far more traditional roles and desire to look great for their partners.

Some males do not have anything against feminine girls who respect traditional values. On the other hand, some guys may possibly see this as a sign of repression and might not really feel comfortable being taken care of. Some guys from western countries love powerful girls and wouldn't hesitate to do their own chores. Either way is fine, but you will need to understand that Russian girls are intelligent and not stupid airheads simply because they appreciate their roles as mothers and housewives. Plenty of Russian women go to college and proceed to have professional qualifications.

In some circles, the ladies are known for their emotional and dramatic outbursts. They have a tendency to put on their hearts on their sleeves and they don't like hiding their feelings. One particular thing to remember is the fact that in regards to humour, the cultural differences are really huge. Some men in fact think that their Russian date is just not keen on them since she does not laugh at their jokes, but in most cases they just don't understand them. Sense of humour is cultural so it is better to get to know her first before wanting to make her laugh all the time. You must concentrate on treating your girl like a princess and she will certainly thank you for it.
